DETAILED ACTION

- Examiner apologizes for stating certain claims in the previous office action would be allowable if written in independent form. However, Applicant should note that this is not a final rejection.
- Examiner notes that claims 1,4,11 and 16-18 have been cancelled.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 22 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. More specifically, the elements in the claim language do not indicate how said elements are structurally and operatively related to a quick release buckle.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3677

4. Claims 2-3, 6-10, 12-15 and 20-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ashline et al. (US Patent No. 5,649,341, hereinafter "Ashline").

Ashline discloses a quick release buckle comprising a first cam (62); a knurl bar (48); and a first spring (80) engaged with said first cam and said knurl bar. (See Fig. 1 below). Ashline further discloses that said first spring is operatively arranged to apply compressive force against said first cam and said knurl bar. (See Figs. 2-3 and col. 2, lines 60-67). Also, said knurl bar is operatively arranged to grip a belt (90) in response to said compressive force. Moreover, a housing with an integral mounting structure (72) is disclosed; and wherein said housing has bearing walls that the first cam rests, said bearing wall being the top portion of the integral mounting structure (72); and wherein said first cam is operatively arranged to rotate about said mounting structure and wherein said housing further comprises first (20) and second (65) components and said mounting structure is integral to said first component. (See figure below). Additionally, said mounting structure is integral with said second component, is extruded from said housing and is operatively arranged to engage said first and second components.

Housing

Furthermore, Ashline discloses that said housing has a first mounting structure that is a protrusion fixedly attached to said housing and where a first cam pivotally mounted on said first mounting structure is operatively arranged to rotate about said first mounting structure.

However, Ashline does not disclose a second cam and a second spring operatively arranged to engage and said second cam and said knurl bar, pivotally mounted rotatably on said housing via a second mounting structure, and operatively arranged to apply a compressive force against said second cam.

On the other hand, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have placed a second cam on the Ashline patent, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 5 and 19 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 and 6-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Art Unit: 3677
